

WELLNESS MULTIPLE™

Multiple with Added Immune Support

People pay attention to their immune systems only in the face of external challenges and stress. But a healthy immune system is a daily necessity. WELLNESS MULTIPLE combines broad-range multiple protection with support for the interdependent systems that are related to immunity: immune response, the liver, heart and circulation, antioxidant defense and energy metabolism.

ACTION	A healthy immune system requires support for cell-mediated immunity, mucous membrane integrity , and antioxidant activity. This formula contains ingredients that are involved in T-lymphocyte activity, phagocytosis, thymus gland function, and macrophage function.	Among many other functions, the liver is responsible for nutrient activation, cleansing and detoxification, critical to immune system health.	The cardiovascular system oxygenates and nourishes the immune system. Circulation of the blood is the medium in which the complex and crucial functions of white blood cell-mediated immunity take place. Important protective nutrients support normal heart function and regulate homocysteine levels.	The immune system is exposed to free radicals from many environmental and internal sources. In addition, free radicals are generated by the white blood cells during the immune response. In all cases, free radicals cause oxidative stress that can depress immune system function. Therefore, the free radical-neutralizing power of antioxidants is vital to immune function.	The immune system demands increased energy production when its protective functions must be fully activated. Optimal levels of energy-producing nutrients may support the immune system's increased metabolic demands.
